Leadership Arlington is a nine-month program for established leaders, designed to strengthen and build community through an experiential issue-based and skill-building curriculum.

"Now that we are in our organization's 20th anniversary year, we have seen 20 classes graduate from the Leadership Arlington program, each of them committed to strengthening and building our community," said John Murphy, President of Washington Workplace, member of the Leadership Center for Excellence Board of Regents and graduate of the first inaugural Leadership Arlington Class of 1999. "Every class is comprised of leaders who go on to leave positive marks on the private, public and nonprofit sectors in our region. This invaluable experience is beneficial not just to individual skills and careers, but the common good as well."
